Return of Twilight

**A/N: Hey everyone Sergeant Daniel here. This is a story that I had permission to continue about 5 years ago. I decided "Hey might as well continue it." The Original Title is called "Spiralling Twilight" by Echo of a Feather. So yeah, enjoy. I'm a little rusty but it's all good. **

**Summery: Midna destroys the Mirror of Twilight before heading home, Separating her and Link. However, an evil force has brought back the Mirror of Twilight from dust. The Sacred Beast and Hero is needed once again. LinkxMinda**

**P.S. The first chapter is from the original author but the rest will be mine.**

Return of Twilight

**End of Ganondorf**

Link turns on a point, now facing Ganon. Ganondorf maniacally laughs, and lifts his arm, his hand enclosing a small object. Midna's Fused Shadows. Link stands, horrified, unable to comprehend the fact that it signifies Midna's bereavement.

A fiery passion for revenge fills his body, and he lunges at Ganon with renewed vigor, now determined to deprive the evil mastermind of his existence. Quickly rolling around to Ganon's back Link furiously slashes, ripping the tyrants caparison, but not injuring him. Ganondorf turns, at an almost impossible speed to face Link. >Link backs up, waiting, swinging his sword in an almost taunting way. Ganondorf lunges and locks swords with his opponent. Sparks fly from their swords, as they struggle for power.At last Link shoves Ganon back one last time, and he falls sprawling to the ground. Link runs over, and slashes, drawing thin lines of blood on Ganondorf's body. Ganon's >blood is not red, but purple, and it sickens Link. Quickly he retreats, waiting for the malevolent king to arise. He is not disappointed. Ganon stands, and smirks at his rival, "Is that all you've got? This is hardly a challenge!" Link approaches carefully, eyeing Ganondorf's sword. Quickly he rolls to Ganon's backside, but he is too slow, the king already faces him. Link tries again, and again without success. Ganon jumps, and Link runs for safety. He lands, and slashes, catching Link's foot with his blade. Link stumbles, his foot bleeding profusely. Ganon approaches him and begins to prepare for a jump attack. Link rolls to the side and stands, remembering Midna, and gaining new ardor, he puts aside the pain emanating from his foot. He tries to roll around Ganon again, but he is growing exasperated, and as Ganon stabs his arm, drawing blood and rendering his sword arm weakened, he realizes he must end this battle quickly.

As a last resort he pulls from his pocket a fishing rod, and casts it toward Ganondorf. Distracted by the lure, Ganon drops his defense - allowing Link to deepen the previously inflicted wounds with his remaining strength. Violaceous blood streams down, staining the grass, and the Master Sword. Ganon collapses and Link closes in for the quietus. He leaps, and plunges his sword, deep into Ganondorf's heart. His nemesis opens his mouth in a silent cry of pain, and stands, sword still imbedded in his chest. Link backs up, taken off guard by the sudden rise of his opponent. He stumbles and falls, but no longer has the strength to stand, if Ganon survives his last attack Link is finished. Seconds later the light in Ganondorf's eyes fades, and the Triforce upon his hand fades in a flash of light. He collapses onto the ground, defeated. Ganondorf Dragmire is dead.
